GRACEFUL WALLS OF LIBERTY HALL, SYMBOLIC OF THE ENDURING QUAL-ITIES OF THAT INSTITU-TION OF LEARNING THE SCOTCH-IBISH FOUNDED ON THE FRONTIER. S we watch our happy and event-ful years at Washington and Lee pass rapidly by, we can reconcile ourselves to the thought of separation only with the assurance that we are storing up memories and associations never to be forgotten. It is the purpose of this book to give to these treasures of the mind, tangible expressions—to give a sympathetic interpretation of Washington and Lee's background and its growing traditions, an embodiment of the ideals and aspirations of its students through many generations, and a graphic chronicle of the work and play and glorious comradship that give these fleeting years their lasting significance.

THE GREAT LEADER SLEEPS, HIS RESTING PLACE A SHRINE AND HIS MEMORY ALIVE IN THE BREAST OF EVERY TRUE AMERICAN.

he Sports world knows him as the leader of a gallant band of football champions, consistently a winner and ever a true sportsman. We of Washington and Lee admire him for his qualities of leadership as student, alumnus, and coach, respect him as a gentleman, and love him as a friend. There is that genuineness about his broad smile and his concern for the interests of the University that draws us to him and makes us proud of him—proud of "Tex"Tilson, a true Washington and Lee product.

AUGUSTA ACADEMY

THE indomitable Scotch-Irish who swept over the Blue Ridge and conquered the wilderness soon sought to strengthen the foundations of empire laid with axe, rifle, and Bible with intellectual achievement and a broadening culture. In 1749, when clearings were half made and homes still log huts, the long inherent desire for learning induced Robert Alexander to establish Augusta Academy, a one-room cabin where a new race of Americans gathered in hunting shirts to whet their intellects and learn the rudiments of Greek, Latin and philosophy. Strapping young fellows they were, these frontiersmen who learned the ways of the world in the forest, and the ways of men and the gods in the classics. They played hard and worked hard in the rustic simplicity of this humble school, which is significant not only for what it has become, but also as evidence of the intellectual energy that characterized this fringe of the frontier. Such was the cradle of Washington and Lee University.

TUCKER HALL—NEW LAW BUILDING TO BE COMPLETED DURING 1935-1936 SESSION

I. THE BURNING OF TUCKER HALL

While the town of Lexington was already excited over a devastating fire in a large lumber yard during the early morning hours of December 16, the residents on the Washington and Lee campus were startled by students rushing across the lawn, shouting, "The college is on fire." Early arrivals who saw the flames darting from Tucker Hall, the law building, both in the front and the rear, realized that the building was certainly doomed.

So general were the flames that there was no opportunity to rescue the books from the library, or the valuable portraits of John Marshall and the bust of John Randolph Tucker.

The three fire companies of Lexington, Buena Vista and Staunton working together rescued the college from a danger that threatened its entire plant.

Those first on the ground are convinced that the fire was the work of an incendiary, though no possible motive can be assigned for such an act, and no clue has been discovered as to the perpetrator. The insurance on Tucker Hall itself was $20,000 and on the library, $10,000.

II. Temporary Plans for Instruction

As soon as the tension of fear for the other buildings was relieved, the college authorities began at once to make plans for carrying on the work of the law school.

Reference books and others of immediate necessity were ordered; bookshelves and other library equipment were placed in the old Y. M. C. A. room in Reid Hall. Classroom accommodations were provided in the lecture rooms of the various buildings on the campus. So the work of the law school is going forward without interruption.

III. THE PERMANENT PLAN

A meeting of the entire Board of Trustees was held on December 28. At this meeting the Board authorized the erection of a new building to be ready for occupancy during the session of 1933-1936. A committee on finance and a committee on the building were appointed to carry out the plans.

The firm of Carneal, Johnston, and Wright, of Richmond, Virginia, will supervise the construction of the building. A firm of national reputation for a special acquaintance with the Georgiac exhibitoring of the Calonial Virginia type will be selected to act as consultants.

Georgian architecture of the Colonial Virginia type will be selected to act as consultants.

The new building will be set back in line with Washington Hall, and its façade will be a replica of that of Newcomb Hall, thus completing the symmetry of the entire group of buildings in the famous colonnade. The new Tucker Hall is planned to be larger and more commodious than its predecessor.

The finance committee and a representative of the alumni are raising the funds with which the new structure will be built, appealing to the sons of Washington and Lee in this crisis; the response will determine when the plans already made can be carried forward.

PRESIDENT

YOUNG alumnus, a graduate of five years ago, writes me: "I am not sure that while I was a student I paid a great deal of attention to the intangible values of Washington and Lee, the sense of historic personages, the beauty that surrounded us, the customs of honor and courtesy that slowly permeated the soul of us all. But these things are meaning more to me as each year passes."

It is my earnest hope, gentlemen of the class of 1935. and it is my deep conviction, that your experience through the future years will be much like his, a revelation of the deep significance of certain intangible values which Washington and Lee offers. To this end I trust that this annual will be a symbol.

LIBERTY HALL

THE cause of democracy and education went forward together on the frontier as pastors, lawyers, and physicians were needed as leaders of the new nation. Augusta Academy, in 1776, became Liberty Hall, and a new edifice of logs was erected by the people of the presbytery to house the flourishing institution. The Rev. William Graham, who in his youth was known as a great one to cut the pigeon wing in a frolicking dance, was now the fervent guiding spirit; there was a library of 300 books and a cannily chosen collection of scientific apparatus; and there were some thirty or forty young men who paid their ten pounds, four shillings a year for tuition, board, and room. The students filed in, in orderly fashion, when a blast on a cow horn called them from their wrestling, racing, and lolling under the great oak trees; big and little were kept on the alert trying to trap one another in their sing-song recitations of Greek verbs or the Roman wars. The War of the Revolution came to Virginia; teachers and scholars joined the huntsmen who trailed over the mountains to meet the Redcoats. These were days of hardship, and the Rev. William Graham was forced to move his growing family to a farm near Lexington, where the school soon followed him in 1882.

LIBERTY HALL ACADEMY

THE good people of Lexington were anxious to have the warstrangled school brought to their midst, but the trustees were prudently wary of the temptations and iniquities of town life and instead chose the beautiful hill to the westward as the site for the school that Washington was soon to honor and set on its feet with his gift of canal stock. Here the fiery demagogue Priestly could declaim the orations of Demosthenes in the original, in sylvan scenes akin to those of ancient Greece. The young gentlemen of the Valley, however, had outgrown the simple life of a generation before and, so their masters recorded, were given to swearing, card playing, fighting, and the constant perpetration of vicious pranks. A plot was even unearthed to burn down the academy buildings. Not always were the boys content with the prescribed bill of fare: for breakfast, coffee, tea, or chocolate and bread; for dinner, one course of bread and meat "with suitable sauce of vegetables"; for supper, bread, butter, and milk. Besides Latin and Greek, the few studious lads devoted their time to arithmetic, algebra, geography, logic, criticism and rhetoric, Euclid's plane trigonometry, navigation, land surveying, and natural philosophy. The walls of Liberty Hall, which still stand today, were built in 1793, but this imposing structure was burned during Christmas in 1802, and then the newly-named Washington College was moved to Lexington to begin yet another chapter of its dynamic history.

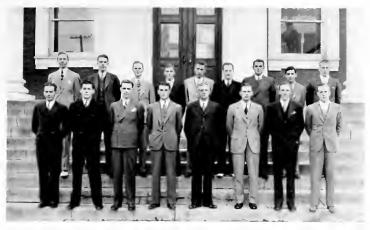

NOT ALL THE SPORTS WERE SO INNOCENT AS THIS

WASHINGTON ACADEMY

1798-1813

IN 1804, under great pressure from the people of the town, the trustees reluctantly established the academy on its present site. Their fears were in a measure justified, for "thenceforth the students became part of the town. Every meeting of every sort; every show, every party, every concert, every riot; every horn, every bell; everything that can excite the attention of excitable youth; every lure by which shopkeepers can extract money from imprudent boys; all were thenceforth continually attracting the students from their books and from their ways of innocence." When the boys persisted in throwing biscuits at the steward and acting so barbarously at their meals that that suffering man gave up his job and no successor could be found, they had to be sent out to board with the townspeople, and the refining influence of female associations is favorably commented upon. There was continual fighting between town and gown, so that at times armed guards had to be stationed on the campus. The boys liked to bathe by night at the town pump, as much for the excitement of the fight that was sure to develop as for anything else. They were given to wandering over the hills, fishing, and sometimes 'possum hunting; for their especial amusement the prohibition of dancing was removed on Washington's birthday and the Fourth of July. The terms were of five months each. with vacation in April and October. Two new brick buildings were adequate for the needs of the school, which had become Washington College in 1813, until its growing prosperity led to the construction of

TROUBADOURS

In answer to several years' agitation among campus aesthetes for "experimental dramatics," the Troubadours during the past term have forsaken the more ordinary brand of the theatre—mystery thrillers and Broadway comedies—and have gone in for more original and ambitious productions. Among the most recent plays presented are a difficult historical drama—"Richelieu," a sensational melodrama, "R. U. R.," and two comic offerings of Lawrence E. Watkin, director of the players.

The latter, Mr. Painter's Palace of Pleasure and Tomorrow Appears, proved to be two of the brightest bits seen in these parts since General Lee ambled back from the war on Traveller. Mr. Watkin's well-known sense of humor sounds as well on the stage as in the classroom, and Lexington audiences literally ate it up. Mortimer Painter, the timid radio announcer in the play of that name, and Gramp, of "Tomorrow Appears," were two of the most ridiculous characters imaginable. and George Foster and F. J. Barnes, of the faculty, who played them, got a maximum of humor out of the parts.

"R. U. R." was perhaps less outstanding than the two local products, but there were several memorable scenes when the robots went haywire and destroyed the human race. Harry Fitzgerald as Dr. Alquist, the scientist who betrayed society, and Charles Mower, playing Radius, the leader of the robots, contributed unusually vivid performances. One other feature, the sets designed by Lewis McMurran, technical director of the organization, are worthy of comment. In imagination and originality they set a new high for the scenery of a Troubadour show.

Top—The radio poet, suffering from a hangover and the jibes of relatives, comes through with his broadcast in "Mr. Painter's Palace of Pleasure."

Second—The robots, headed by Charlie Mower, threaten Dr. Alquist (Harry Fitzgerald) in "R, U, R."

Third—Steady there, Miss Penick, or you'll shoot Aaron (Dr. Leon P. Smith). A scene from "Tomorrow Appears."

Buttom—Love will find a way, say Bill Hawkins and Mrs. Ralph Daves, the young romaneers of "Mr, Painter's Palace of Pleasure."

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

1813-1871

IFE moved leisurely in the first half of the nineteenth century, and the college moved leisurely with it. The students became more genteel in their manners and entered upon that attractive period of social intimacy with the good people of Lexington which came to an end only with the era of the automobile. This refinement was preceded by stringent faculty laws, which got the students out of bed at five in the morning and saw them safely shut up at nine or ten at night. There were times, however, when the young gentlemen would visit the taverns in droves and then barricade themselves off in the streets, shouting and dancing. Even the Friday night meetings of the now thriving literary societies became so boisterous that the faculty ordered them to be held on Saturday forenoon instead. Discipline suffered during the administration of Dr. Louis Marshall in the early thirties, who believed in the rule of good fellowship, ordered regular classes abolished, and had a bed moved into his office whereon he reclined at his ease and smoked while his students recited. His advanced ideas of education were a failure, however, and the old discipline was again resorted to until Robert E. Lee introduced the concept of honor and individual responsibility as forces of student government. There were occasional great events, as when the cornerstone for the main building was laid, and John Robinson, the Irish horse trader whose fortune was so generously devoted to the cause of learning, provided a forty-gallon barrel of choice rye whisky for a grand party. Nevertheless, the boys went on being boys, and schoolmasters fumed and taught and gave nearly everybody high grades, and Washington College consistently turned out worthy and distinguished citizens. Then came the war, and the Liberty Hall Volunteers marched and counter-marched with the Army of Northern Virginia. War wreaked its havoc and made the languishing school to which Robert E. Lee came to devote the last years of his life of service symbolic to him of his war-crippled Southland.

FANCY DRESS

To the stately strains of Schubert's "March Militaire," played by Isham Jones, the promenade led by Don R. Wallis with Miss Isabel E. Connolly as Prince and Princess Metternich, nshered in the brilliant 29th Annual Fancy Dress Ball.

With the Doremus Gymnasium pretentiously decorated as one of the state ballrooms of the old Imperial Palace of the Emperors of Austria, the theme re-enacted was a ball given for the important personages attending the historical Congress of Vienna held in 1814.

Alexander I, Czar of Russia, with the Czarina, and the Duke of Wellington, were portrayed respectively by B. Elliott Brennan escorting Miss Mary Virginia Barnes, of Birmingham, Ala., upper right, and Fletcher F. Maynard with Miss Elizabeth Ford, of Memphis, Tenn., upper left.

Immediately below, the majesty of the great old ballroom is apparent, with its scarlet hangings, stately pillars, and artistic railings of white marble, gilt trimmings, and ornate crystalline chandelier, faithfully reproduced with the gracious aid of the Austrian Minister to the United States.

Below, Rolland H. Berry, with Miss Martha Talley, of Washington, D. C., impersonating Maximilian I and his wife, King and Queen of Bavaria.

Last, we see the scene changed into gay students, escorting a myriad of starry-eyed young ladies, joins faculty and honored guests including the Governor of Virginia and Mrs. Peery, in the sparkling revelry which marks another glorious Fancy Dress.

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY

NDER the guiding wisdom and unqualified devotion of the great Southern leader, a localized backwoods college became a national institution unique in traditions inculcating honor, leadership, self-reliance, and gentlemanliness. When the fertile period of his leadership was over, the institution was proud to symbolize the lasting influence of this noble American in the name Washington and Lee University. The honor system works today as Lee conceived it; the Washington and Lee gentleman emulates his character. Student self-government functions smoothly and effectively, and every student's conduct is his own responsibility. Omicron Delta Kappa had its beginning here, and the records of Washington and Lee men in public service speak for themselves. The esprit de corps flames high, fostered by friendliness, by concern for the reputation of the University, by participation in the excellence of its social program, and by pride in the established prowess of its athletic teams. Out of veneration for the ideals of the University and its great men and out of the happiness of associating with so many friends amid beautiful and historic surroundings, there grows on every student a great love for Washington and Lee. This grouping of the tradition and the inspiration of the past with the enthusiasm and the aspiration of a generation of the present in a congenial atmosphere of culture and beauty produces a living, breathing institution of great influence —the Washington and Lee University of today.

FOOTBALL RESUME

Opening against Wofford on September 22 in Lexington, the Big Blue showed its strength, crushing the Wofford team 19-0. Taking the ball immediately after the opening whistle, the Generals pushed across a touchdown after a sustained drive. Will Sample, sophomore back, carried the ball across for the first tally of the season. Seaton, diminutive quarterback playing his third year of varsity ball, scored the second touchdown after taking a punt on his own 47-yard line and racing down the sidelines 53 yards for the score. The final touchdown came as the result of a pass from Preston Moore to George Lowry.

In the second game of the season, the Big Blue downed the University of Kentucky 7-0 at Lexington, Ky. Played on an extremely muddy field, the game resolved itself into a punting duel between Bill Ellis and Bert Johnson, the lone score coming in the fourth period, when Hugo Bonino blocked a Kentucky punt and Bill Dyer recovered deep in the Wildcats' territory. A fifteen-yard plunge by Jack Bailey gave Washington and Lee the victory.

On the following week in Lexington the Generals defeated the University of Maryland 7-0 in the first Southern Conference game of the season. The lone touchdown was scored in the second period when Widmyer got off a poor punt for the Terps. Led by Sample the Generals made two first downs in quick succession, with Sample carrying the ball over for the score. Mattox converted for the extra point.

The Generals suffered their first defeat of the season on October 13, when they bowed before the superior strength of West Virginia, 12-0, in a hard-fought game played before 12,000 in Charleston.

The most thrilling game of the season was played on October 19 in Palmer Stadium when Princeton eked out a last-minute 14-12 victory over the fighting Generals. Within five minutes after the opening whistle, the punts of Bill Ellis and hard rushing through the line had brought the ball to the Princeton 20-yard line. Matrox's attempt for a field goal failed, but the Generals came back quickly, with Matrox passing to Charlie Smith for the first fouchdown. Machillan broke up the attempt at conversion. The Tigers took the ball on a sustained drive with Kadlick passing to Lea for a fouchdown. Sandback's attempt at conversion was successful. In the third quarter the Big Blue started a 53-yard fouchdown march, culminated by a pass from Matrox to Moore, which gave the Generals the lead of 12-7. With less than two minutes to play a 40-yard Princeton pass from Kadlick to Lea was ruled good on interference on W. & L's 20-yard line. A pass to LeVan placed the ball on the four-yard line, and two line plunges put it over.

Playing before a huge Homecoming crowd the Big Blue came from behind in the last quarter to down Virginia Tech 13-7 on October 20. The Gobblers had scored on a partially blocked punt, but with the ball on his own 15-yard line, Captain Mattox threw caution to the winds and heaved a pass to Smith. Receiving the ball on his thirty, the lanky end raced down the field behind the interference of Joe Arnold and crossed the goal standing up. Mattox converted. V. P. I. chose to receive, and one of the Gobbler backs fumbled the kickoff. Ed Seitz recovered on the 17, and Joe Arnold broke off tackle for the second touchdown.

Led by Buzz Borries, all-American half, the Navy proved too strong for Washington and Lee and deteated the Generals 26-0 before a crowd of 25,000 in Annapolis on Notember 3. Forward and lateral passes kept the Navy continually in a threatening position.

Completely crushing the University of Virginia, the Generals downed their ancient rivals 20-0 at Charlottesville on November 10. Opening up in the second quarter, the Big Blue pushed over two touchdowns. The first came as a result of a torty-yard pass, Mattox to Arnold, with Bailey scoring from the three-yard line. Then Mattox flipped a long forward to Smith, who in turn shot the ball on a lateral to Sample, who crossed the goal standing up. The final score came in the fourth quarter, with Mattox crossing the line after receiving a pass from Bill Seaton.

The Big Blue gained the state title for the second consecutive year on November 17, when William and Mary bowed 7-0. The lone score of the game was made when Charlie Smith intercepted a torward pass and raced 70 yards behind perfect interference for the touchdown.

The Southern Conference championship came to the Generals, when they deteated South Carolina 14-7 on Thanksgiving Day at Columbia. Just after the game started the Gamecocks scored their only touchdown of the day. In the second quarter Seaton took a punt on his own 45 and carried it to the 31. After Bailey and Seaton made a first down, Mattox passed to Bill Ellis for a touchdown and then converted. Late in the tourth period, Preston Moore intercepted a pass and set the stage for the winning score. Standing on his own 40-yard line, Mattox arched a long pass to Seaton, who cluded two tacklers and crossed the goal.

RESUME, 1934-1935

After a season that had been only fairly successful, the 1935 basketball team entered the Southern Conference tourney decidedly the underdog and then, playing inspired basketball, advanced to the finals only to be nosed out in the championship game. Bowing to North Carolina in the final game, the Generals took second place in the Southern Conference. Previous to the tournament, the Big Blue had played seventeen games, of which eight were victories for Washington and Lee. Winning two games and losing one of the tournament games, the Generals broke even for the entire season, with ten wins and the same number of defeats.

The Big Blue opened its season on December 13 in Lexington when Cy Young's machine overwhelmed the Dupout Collegians, 52-16. Although Captain Charlie Smith, star center of the Generals, was in the hospital, the Big Blue had little trouble in winning. Norman Her and Horace Richardson, sophomore members of the team, were high scorers, with 14 and 13 points respectively. Following this victory, the Big Blue defeated the Kroger Blue Devils in Doremus Gymnasium on December 17. Smith was again not in uniform. After a ragged opening, the Generals synchronized their play and coasted to a 39-19 victory. Joe Pette was high scorer of the game with 17 points.

After the Christmas holidays the Washington and Lee quintet played their first intercollegiate game, defeating St. Johns College 37-26 in Lexington on January 7. The St. Johns team took the lead at the opening whistle, but the Generals soon tightened their play and torged ahead. Thereafter the Big Blue's lead was undisputed. Richardson was high scorer with eleven points. The Generals lost their first Southern Conference game to North Carolina on January 10. North Carolina made little progress during the early part of the game, but, in a rally in the last five minutes of the second half, they nosed out the Big Blue to win 36-34. In the next two games, W. & L. deteated Virginia and Virginia Feeh. In a return game with the Kroger Blue Dexils, the Generals had little trouble in repeating their first victory and won 39-25.

Beginning with a loss to Duke on February 2, the Washington and Lee team went into a three-game slump, being deteated by Duke twice and once by William and Mary. The Generals recovered temp rarily to defeat Virginia Tech in a game at Blacksburg on February 9, deteating the Gebblers 20-22. With several members of the squad suffering from colds and with the colorful Bobbie Fields temporarily lest to the squad, the Generals were downed by North Carolina State on February 13. Two days later the University of Virginia, previously beaten by Washington and Lee, turned the tables on the Generals and nosed them out 31-29. Although 11 record for uterion points in this game, the Big B'ue machine tailed to function properly. The Virginia game was followed by 33-29 victors over the University of Maryland team.

On February 19 the state championship team of the University of Richmond barely deteated the Generals 25-21 in a fast game played in Dorenius Gymnasium. The Big Blue dropped the last two games of the regular season with losses to both Clemson and South Carolina.

Entering the Southern Conterence tournament on February 28 as decending champions but with a rather unimpressive record, the Generals proved the most surprising team in the tournes in the initial game of the tournament, the Generals came from behind to trip a highly tayored Clemson team and emerged the victors by a 20/23 sourc. In the semi-finals the Big Blue won by a close score over Duke, a team that had deteated the Generals twice during the season. In the final game against North Carolina, the Washington and I conjunct was unable to torge ahead of the Carolina team, and a tresh supply of Carolina reserves ended all hope of a last-minute rally by the Generals, who were deteated 35/25.

ALTHOUGH dethroned from the Southern Conference championship in wrestling, which Washington and Lee had held ever since the beginning of the Conference tournaments, the 1935 wrestling squad went through a hard season without losing a dual match. The victories which the Generals won included a 19-13 win over the strong squad of grapplers from the University of Michigan, recognized as a leading contender in the Big Ten.

The wrestling season was opened on December 15 when the Johns Hopkins team was defeated 34-0 by the Big Blue, wrestling before a crowd of over 400 in Doremus Gymnasium. Hugo Bonino, star heavyweight wrestler, was kept out of this meet with an arm injury. Kaplan, who normally wrestles 175, substituted for Bonino and did a creditable piece of work in throwing his man in slightly over two minutes. In the first bouts of the evening, Taylor and Crew of Washington and Lee pinned their respective opponents. Lowry gained a time advantage over his man, as did Shively and Levine. Holland and Arenz both threw their adversaries.

In the second meet of the season, Washington and Lee again was not scored upon, winning all matches from North Carolina University on February 2, the final score being 28-0. On a Southern trip the next week, the Generals won two more victories, defeating North Carolina State and Duke. In the North Carolina State meet, the Big Blue was trailing 9-12 when Bonino entered the ring for the last bout. Pinning his man, Bonino brought a 14-12 victory to Washington and Lee.

On February 18, the Generals faced the powerful Michigan team, and won a hard-fought victory. Thomas won the first match of the evening by default. Crew gained a time advantage, while Lowry was thrown. Shively defeated his oppinent, but Arenz was pinned and Levine was deteated to give the Wolverines a two-point lead Kaplan, however, won a time advantage over his adversary, and Bonino pinned his man to bring a 19-13 victory to the Generals.

Following a 19-11 victory over Virginia Tech, the Generals entered the Southern Conference tournament, held in Doremus gymnasium, to defend their title. At the end of the final matches. Washington and Lee and Virginia Military Institute were tied with 26 points each. V. M. I. won the title in the consolation matches, the final score being 36-31. Washingon and Lee won four individual titles, the winners being Thomas. Shively, Arenz, and Bonino. Thomas was high scorer of the tournament with 8 points, while Bonino was second with 7: thus accounting for almost half of the total number or points scored by the Generals.

RESUME

After starting the season by losing two games, the Washington and Lee baseball team ran off one of the longest streaks of consecutive victories in Big Blue history, winning six games in a row. Maryland, however, pushed the Generals into a slump from which the team seemed never fully recovered, for in the latter half of the schedule only two games were won out of the eight played.

Joe Pette pitched the opener against North Carolina State on the Easter trip and struck out fourteen batters, but a single, two triples, and an error bunched in the fourth accounted for four runs to beat the Generals 4-3. In the second game of the season, the Big Blue went down before North Carolina University, 9-2.

The record winning streak began with a close victory over Wake Forest. Two walks and two singles in the ninth yielded the Generals two runs to nose out the Deacons 7-6. Richmond was the next victim of the Big Blue's attack and was defeated 5-3. The last game on the Easter trip was with William and Mary, with the Generals winning a close 5-4 decision.

Coming from behind, the Big Blue defeated Vermont 7-5 in a game featured by the pitching of Pette. Again Pette starred when the Generals blanked North Carolina State in a return game 6-0. In this game Pette limited the visitors to three scattered hits and struck out thirteen batters in nine innings. In a wild ninth and ten inning rally, the Big Blue eked out a 5-4 win over V. P. I. The Gobblers had piled up an imposing lead early in the game, but, with the score 4-1 against W. & L., Pullen, Muller, and Fields scored to tie the game. Pette blanked Tech in the first of the tenth, and then Short crossed the plate with the winning run.

Going into the second half of the schedule, the Generals went into the slump which marred their season's record. First the Big Blue was blanked by Maryland and then in the next game by Virginia. Picking up steam again Washington and Lee nosed out William and Mary, 3-2, in a return game. Following this victory, the Big Blue dropped a close decision to V. P. I. On a trip north, the Generals lost all three games—the first to Maryland, the second to Georgetown, and the third to the Navy team. The season was concluded with a close 6-5 win registered over West Virginia.

Winning eight of the sixteen games on the schedule, the team had a season average of .500. Notwithstanding the early season winning streak, Washington and Lee finished in only seventh place in the Southern Conference and fourth place in the state race. Sauerbrun led the batting with an average of .305 for the season; while Joe Pette was star twirler with a season pitching average of .625.

RESUME, 1934

The track season at Washington and Lee in 1934 was notable not so much for the number of meets won as for the stellar performance of several individual track stars. Despite the fact that the Generals won only one of the six meets in which they participated, the season was marked by the records turned in by Dick Dunaj in the distance runs and by Bill Schule's performance in the hurdles.

The Big Blue went through the season without the services of their captain, Harry Hazell. Hazell had been elected captain at the close of the 1933 season, but illness in the spring of 1934 kept him from participating in track throughout the season. Needless to say, the loss of his services in the 440 was a great handicap to the track

The season opened with a dual meet in Lexington with Virginia Tech on April 14, one of the closest meets in which the Generals participated during the season. With two field events, the javelin throw and the broad jump, yet to be run off, the score

Dick Dunaj was high scorer of the meet, taking first place in both the 880 and the two-mile runs as well as second place in the mile. Schuhle and Hanley each took two first places.

A week later, on April 21, Duke won the second dual meet of the year, downing the Generals 81 1-3 to 44 2-3 on Wilson Field. Again Dunaj turned in a stellar performance, taking first place in both the mile and the two-mile runs, beating Bird, the Duke captain. Billy Schule again won both the high and the low hurdle races.

In a dual meet at Richmond on April 28, the Spiders nosed out the Generals by the close score of 66-60. Dunaj, high scorer of this meet, turned in his most remarkable record of the season, and proved his right to the title of "Tron Man," He entered the 880, the mile, and the two-mile runs and carried off first-place honors in each of the three events.

In the state track meet on May 5, the Generals rared rather poorly, finishing last in final score. Hanley took first in the discus, Dunaj won the two-nule race, and Corbett and Clements field with rour others for first in the pole yault.

In the triangular meet held at College Park on May 12, Maryland was conceded first place before the meet. The Generals downed V. M. L in the race for second place. Dunaj and Schule each took two first places in this meet.

The Southern Conterence meet held at Durham on May 18 to the B 2 Blac finished fifth. Dunaj finished third in the two ride, Schule took third in the ligh hurdles and tourth in the high hurdles, while Lurd and Corbett field for second in the pole yault.

BOXING

With three defeats and no victories, the 1935 boxing season at Washington and Lee could hardly be termed a great success. In all probability this is the last year of boxing at the University, for soon after the close of the varsity season the Athletic Council voted to discontinue boxing as an organized sport.

The boxing season opened on February 2 when the University of Maryland boxers defeated the Generals 6-2. Poor condition was largely responsible for the defeat, as Bailey and Owings both lost their bouts on technical knockouts when they were too weak to continue, although both had held. up until that point, decided advantages over their opponents. In the first bout, Fallat lost a close decision to Young of Maryland: Wally Davies then outpointed his adversary to gain the first score for Washington and Lee. In the 135-pound class. Brooks Skinner lost on a technical knockout to Nedomatsky. recognized as one of the leading boxers of nis weight in the South Atlantic district. Skinner had floored his opponent in the opening round before the latter had been able to land a single blow. Ed Jean won the only other pout for Washington and Lee defeating Kelley in the 15%-pound class. Jean was floored in the first round, but came back to win.

Virginia Tech won a close 4 [15], victory over the Generals on February 9. Fellat and Captain George Short won decisions: while Ed Jean, fighting with a spirt finger, scored a technical knock at in the 175-ps and class. With the score standing at 4-5 in favor of V. P. I. before the last Fout Bailey made a valiant effort to win his bout and a tie for the team. However, he was forced to be evintent with a draw.

In the last match of the seas nother Hampden-Sydney glove-pushers won another close victory over Washington and Lee by a 4% to 3% score. Fallat gave the Generals an early lead, outpointing his man. Then with the defeat of Cottingham and Skinner, the Tigers gained a one-point advantage. Hardwick Stuart evened the score, but Hampden-Sydney forged ahead with a pair of wins. Ed Jean then won his blut, and Jack Bailey attempted to the the score, but again was able only to win a draw.

RESUME 1934

The golf team brought another Southern Conference championship to Washington and Lee at the close of a highly successful season under the tutelage of Coach "Cy" Twombly. The Big Blue won six of the nine matches played, and of the three teams defeating the Generals during the season, two—Duke and Richmond—were defeated in return matches.

The season was opened with an easy victory over the Boston College golfers, Washington and Lee taking every match to win 16-2. Thereafter followed two defeats, one by North Carolina State and the other by Duke. Then, on April 16, the Big Blue downed the Hampden-Sydney team. Following a win over Virginia, the Generals were nosed out on the local links by Richmond College. Beating Virginia Tech by a decisive score, the W. & L. putters won return matches played with Richmond and Duke, thus avenging earlier defeats.

In the Southern Conference tournament held on the Cascades Course at Hot Springs, Washington and Lee emerged the victor by a narrow margin. At the end of the first 18 holes the Duke team was well in the lead, but the Generals advanced to pass Duke and win the Conference crown. That Washington and Lee had a well-coached and well-balanced team is shown by the fact that four of the Big Blue golfers finished in the upper bracket of the tournament, while no other team had more than two in the first twelve.

Captained by Duncan McDavid and coached by "Cv" Twombly, the swimming team brought another Southern Conference crown to Washington and Lee with their victory in the Conference tournament on March 8-9. The Big Blue tankmen had a perfect record for the season, being victorious in every meet which they entered.

The Generals opened the season on February 2 with a 53-31 victory over William and Mary. Captain McDavid with two first places to his credit led his team to their first success of the season. On February 6 the Big Blue won a close victory over the Duke tankmen in a meet that was marked by falling records and closely contested races. Again McDavid starred, winning first place in both the 220 and the 440; while Brasher, a sophomore, took two seconds and a third. Although McDavid was unable to swim against Virginia Tech on February 16, Whitie Williams capably substituted for him, winning two firsts.

The Conference swimming tournament held at Charlottesville was closely contested throughout by W. & L. and Duke, with the Generals finally taking the crown by a three-point margin when McCauley took first in the diving. The Big Blue took five firsts in the nine events. McDavid won the 220 and 440; Glynn, the back-stroke; McCauley, the diving; while the relay team also took a first.

Handicapped by inclement weather, preventing adequate practice sessions, the Big Blue netmen dropped both games of the initial trip—the first to Maryland and the second to Virginia. In the meet with Maryland the Generals won two doubles matches and one singles, but failed to score a single point against the Cavaliers. Taking four singles and two doubles, the Big Blue outclassed St. Johns for the only victory of the season. In a return engagement with Maryland, the Generals were again defeated.

Ashow, the 1034 freshman basebal, team was not underested or able to boast of an exceptional record as far as wins and losses, it was one of the finest collections of steady ball flayers ever to wear the Brigadier uniforms. Many of its members give fromise of developing into fine varsity material. Preston Moore led the team with an individual batting average of 1254 while the hurling of Emerson Dickman was outstanding throughout the season.

FRESHMAN BOXING

The freshman boxing team, like the warsity, did not fare well in its season of two matches. The failure to make a better showing was the result of inexperience and a lack of material, and was not caused by any lack of hard work on the part of the team or the coaching stags.

Appreciation

O Mr. Leonard Glover, of the Lynchburg Engraving Company, we can only attempt to express our deep gratitude for his continuous aid in the planning of this book, and for his invaluable assistance in working out its theme.

For his important help in planning and servicing this annual, and for his judicious advice, we are greatly indebted to Mr. William A. Daniel, of the Benson Printing Company.

Mr. Andy McClung, of the Andre Studio, has ably contributed to the photography of this book. For this, and for his general aid, we thank him cordially.

To Mr. Edwin Deady, of Deady Studio, we offer our thanks for his artistic pictorial interpretation of the theme.

We wish to express to Mr. A. A. Lubersky, of the David J. Molloy Plant, our appreciation for his personal interest, resulting in the uniquely executed cover design.

We are extremely grateful to Mr. Robert G. Benson, of the Benson Printing Company, for his long, detailed letters of expert advice.

For the view section, we are specially indebted to Mr. Gerald Boylin, also of the Benson Printing Company, who printed it by means of his special process.

To Mr. Hoge, also of the Andre Studio, we are obligated for feature pictures of Fancy Dress and Finals, and for assistance in group photography.

We gratefully acknowledge our debt to Mr. James Montgomery Flagg for graciously consenting to select the beauty section of the annual.

To Miss Blanche P. McCrum, we extend our thanks for her painstaking research on period costumes and for references.

We are greatly obliged to Mr. Frank J. Gilliam for the generous loan of several personal volumes, and for his general solicitude.

Mr. Earl S. Mattingly has earned our gratitude by his kind cooperation in the line of references, and by his interest throughout.

To Mr. Manning H. Williams is due the entire credit for the writing of the theme and also "Headline History," as well as for other invaluable aid, for all of which we are deeply grateful.

For contributing an article on the Troubadours, we wish to thank Mr. Parke Rouse.

May we be permitted to express to the staff our deep sense of gratitude for their loval and persevering efforts toward making this book worthy of faithfully representing Washington and Lee.

To the students, we confess our obligation for their cooperation, without which this book could not be undertaken, and for the constant source of encouragement with which their interest has provided us.

Many outstanding employers we have met look upon pipe smokers as the men most likely to be thinking men, men who make decisions calmly, men who can concentrate. Men of this calibre, they say, prefer a good pipe and tobacco . . . Perhaps it is true, then, that pipe smoking sometimes helps in getting a job.

And for pipe smokers, there's one tobacco which, above all others, is "just right" for pipes. That is Edgeworth—the tobacco that combines slow-burning mildness and coolness with a rich tobacco flavor. Larns & Bro. Co., Richmond, Va.

Investment No. 1

Steadily increasing is the chorus of business leaders jurists, and financiers who, consulting wide experience, advise young men to make life insurance their first investment.

This is wise counsel if for no other reason than that the younger a man is the more insurance he gets for less money. The fore-sighted young man will first capitalize his future earning-power through life insurance. Time enough after this has been done for ventures into speculative fields.
